CITIZENS MEET ON GAS QUESTION

The public meeting called to discuss the gas question, on Thursday last, was the best meeting, from the standpoint of numbers, that has been seen of late years. There were about two hundred present, which shows that keen interest is being taken in the gas question. But from indications shown throughout the meeting the greatest interest was aroused as to whether the boring for gas would be given to a company, and there is no doubt that had a straight vote been taken, city or franchise, the latter would have been overwhelmed. However, it did not come to that point, as eventually it was decided to do nothing at the present time except invite Mr. Dowling, the government expert, to give an opinion on the matter which, after all, is perhaps the best thing to do at the present time. Mayor Galbraith opened the meeting at 8.15. After apologizing for being a little late, he said that the Council had been approached on three occasions by outside companies for permission to bore for gas, the companies, in the event of success, to have a franchise covering from 20 to 25 years. The Council had discussed this matter, and decided to instruct Engineer Dawe and Alderman Botterill to make enquiries at Castor into the gas question and its possibilities and report to the Council. This had been done, and this meeting called to present the report to the ratepayers to give them an opportunity to discuss the question and decide as to what course it was best to take on the matter. He thought the Council had done their part, and it was better to have an open meeting and give the question full discussion. Engineer Dawe would first present his report, and Commissioner Stephenson was there to answer any question relating to the financial position of the city bearing on the question.

Engineer Dawe next read his report, which had already appeared in The News.

H. L. Gaetz took the platform next. He said he could not discuss the question from a geological standpoint, but he had been interested for many years, and had gathered information which he found any rate useful to himself. He believed that there were many who would go into the matter right away without first coming to a direct conclusion as to whether it was possible to find it or not. He did not believe we should do this until we had had the advice of an expert. Mr. Dowling, the government expert, was giving his services at Okotoks, and he had no doubt we could have his services if we asked for them. He did not think it a good thing for a community this size to start boring three to four thousand feet for gas at a cost of probably $100,000. It was too much of a speculation. If gas was found, we would be amply repaid, but in the event of a failure we were saddled with an awful debt. If the prospects were proved reasonable by an expert, he thought we should be willing to expend the money. and he suggested to put an extra tax of five cents on the dollar for five years, instead of spreading the money over a long term of years and mortgaging the future of the city. He didn't think we should find large quantities under 3,500, but he did not wish to throw cold water on the question ; but as Calgary and Edmonton had spent money and been unsuccessful, he believed we would be wiser in spending a little money on competent advice first. As far as his knowledge went, he believed we were more likely to strike oil than gas for he had seen evidence of petroleum for the past twenty-five years in the bed of the river. He thought it would also be wise for the town to appoint a committee to investigate the reports coming to hand, as they lacked confirmation. He would rather see a franchise, as had been suggested, given to a company than the city spend a lot of money in experimenting.

G. W. Greene was asked to give some information as to what took place between Mr. Cost and the Board of Trade on the question a few years ago. He could not say much about it at this time, but four years ago he asked Mr. Cost his opinion of the prospects of gas here. Mr. Cost's opinion was that it could readily be found, but at a depth of about 4,000 feet, but that east of Red Deer it would be found at about 1,800 feet. Mr. Greene thought that the expense for Red Deer would be too great, considering the size of the population, and thought we had better lay low until other places had tried out.

A. Wylie said that he was not so familiar with gas as oil, and he believed there was every indication in and around Red Deer of oil being found in great quantities. He said you can read the papers, have theories, get geologists to come at great expense, and then be none the wiser. What we had to do was dig, and there was no other way of finding out—cut out the theories and dig. He would hardly like to see us spend $100,000 on the matter, but believed we should get outside capital. He did not object to a franchise so long as the franchise was alright. He believed this country was rich in the extreme ; he had examined a dozen places and found indications of oil, and would like to see us get after it.

R. B. Welliver did not wish to force himself or his opinions on the public, but he was ready to fall in line and grasp anything that would be the means of developing the district. When he heard that proposals had been submitted to the Council for franchise to drill for gas, he at once became interested. He would go straight to the point, and say he was death on franchises. The utilities belonged to the people, and he was prepared to sacrifice a great deal rather than give a franchise for gas. We have had some experience in this city with a franchise, and had talked one with another of what we were suffering from it. If gas can be found here, the same can be found at Lacombe, and if we let a company have it here, what was to prevent Lacombe having a company and selling at less cost than we were paying. That would be no satisfaction to us if we were tied down, and we would be up against it again. He was prepared to put $2,000 into a company in town, and then if gas was found, to hand it over to the City Council at cost for the benefit of the citizens, and if gas was not found, then there was an end to it ; and he fully believed there was enough public spirit in Red Deer to raise the required capital. It would be a great thing to have in our homes, but he was against the town doing it under present conditions, and he was decidedly against a franchise.

W. J. Botterill said he was glad to see so many turn out on the question of gas and oil. We had from a geological standpoint gas and oil bearing strata to the north, south, east and west of us, so that there was not much fear but that we would find one or other. In referring to Mr. Cost's opinions, he said that gentleman was speaking as a company man, and it was not likely he would play into our hands in giving information. He himself believed that gas could be got if it was gone after properly. He had not much to offer on the question, and was strongly in favor of municipal ownership.

J. Watson, electrical engineer of the Western General, gave the meeting some very useful and practical advice.

Phil. Pidgeon asked a very pertinent question by wanting to know if the town were at liberty to use gas if they got it, in the face of the franchise held by the Western General ; and he thought we should know that before being asked to decide at all on the question. The Mayor could not state authoritatively whether we could or not, but he was satisfied that it could be used for heating purposes, if not for light.

Mr. Gheur, of the Brazeau Collieries, gave some interesting information as to the depths that gas was usually found, illustrating the different stratas of rock. He said that Medicine Hat, though getting gas at 1,000 feet, was not getting it from the Dakota sands, which would be 3,000 feet in depth. Wetaskiwin was getting it at 1,450 feet depth. This went to show that gas and oil could be and was found in other levels higher up than the Dakotas, but that in such cases he believed the supply nearly always ran out in about 30 years. He believed we should not be in a hurry. A few months more of waiting would not hurt us.

R. L. Gaetz moved, seconded by H. H. Gaetz, that Mr. Dowling, government expert, be asked to give a report on the question. This was put to the meeting and carried, very few voting on the question.

Meeting adjourned.

Poplar Ridge

Mrs. Boddy, and child, of Water Glen, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. F. Neilson, for a few days last week.

Mrs. G. Rogers, of Whittenburg, was visiting her daughter, Mrs. F. A. Neilson, last week.

Frank Orr and Tom Hill, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brownrigg for the past five weeks, returned home on Monday to Barrington, Quebec.

Quite a number of young people gave Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brownrigg a surprise party last Thursday evening.

Harvey Kindur has returned to Poplar Ridge for the winter after spending a few weeks harvesting and threshing in Southern Alberta.

Threshing is all done in this district, and all report the best crop yet.

Remember the service next Sunday afternoon, November 9th, at 3 o'clock. Come and bring a friend.

EXTENSION LECTURE.

Dr. Alexander, of the University of Alberta, will deliver the first of the winter course of lectures in the Assembly Hall of the School, Tuesday evening next, November 11th, at 8.30 sharp. His subject will be "An Evening With Tennyson." Admission free. A cordial welcome to all to be present.

Debutante "AT HOME"

A very pleasant tea was given on Monday, 3rd, by Mrs. G. W. Greene and Mrs. J. McLennan in honor of their daughters, Miss G. Ima Greene and Miss F. H. Vera McLennan. The rooms were prettily decorated for the occasion, pink being the prevailing color, and pink carnations being the flowers used. Mrs. Greene wore white silk brocade and Mrs. McLennan nattiu blue broaded satin with shadow lace draperies, the young ladies wearing white satin. The ladies who assisted in the tea room and receiving were Mesdames E. Meidener, Payne, Whitehouse, Gray, Sanders, Carswell, G. W. Smith, J. M. Smith, Parsons, Keith, Muldrew, Carlyle Moore, Galbraith, Botsford, Munro, J. Grant McGregor, R. L. Gaetz, Carscallen, Page, Wilson, and the Misses Cottingham, Whitehouse, Chambers, George, C. Board of Governors of A. A. A. A. Meet

The board of governors of the Alberta Amateur Athletic Association met in the Fire Chief's office after the rugby game on Saturday, with President Ward of Edmonton in the chair. McLeod, of Edmonton, and Lloyd Cooke, at present also of Edmonton, were re-instated in the amateur ranks. Another application for re-instatement was turned down. Mr. Ballantyne will be asked to represent Alberta at the Dominion meet. Among other motions one was passed recommending that the Dominion Association allow amateur teams to play against professional teams when for exhibition purposes only, and a statement of all gate receipts and disbursements be sent to the Secretary of the A.A.A.A.

Well Known Red Deer Old Timer Died on Saturday

The Calgary Herald of Monday says :

Sage M. Bannerman, one of the best known old timers in the west, passed away on Saturday at the residence of his son, L. Bannerman, 635 Twenty-ninth avenue west. He was born in the parish of Helnsdale, Sutherland, Scotland, on June 20, 1836, and came to Canada in the early fifties, locating at Renfrew, Ontario. He became connected with the lumbering firm of W. McKay, and in 1865 married Christina McKay of Woodstock, Ontario. The call of the west brought him to Winnipeg in 1878, and in 1881 he came to Calgary. That was prior to the arrival of the Canadian Pacific railway company, and his coming here meant much hardship and unswerving confidence in the future of this province.

He remained in Calgary till 1882, when he made his home in Red Deer until the death of his wife about four years ago, when he returned to this city and resided with his son. Old timers still talk of his courage in remaining at the ferry at Red Deer river during the Riel rebellion in 1885. He was one of the new settlers in outlying districts at that time, and during the turbulent days life was very uncertain for all.

Mr. Bannerman always took a keen interest in public affairs, and his death will be mourned by all who knew him as a stalwart supporter of the traditions of the Union Jack, and a man who had always a kindly word of sympathy for those in trouble. He leaves two daughters and three sons : Mrs. W. J. Baird and Mrs. J. E. Wright, both of Calgary ; James A., of Red Deer ; William, of Acme, and L. Bannerman of this city. He also leaves a number of brothers and sisters.

The funeral service is being held in Grace Presbyterian church this afternoon, and the body will be interred at the Union cemetery.

THE NAVAL QUESTION.

Owing to the press of other matter, the splendid address given by W. F. Cockshutt on the naval question, in the city hall on Monday evening, is held over until our next issue, as it was worthy of more than a passing notice. We will give an extended report next week.

MARRION.

A concert and box social will be held in the Marrion schoolhouse on Friday, the 14th November, at 8 p.m. Ladies please bring boxes. Good programme, good time and everybody welcome.

BIRTH.

At Pine Lake, on Friday, October 31st, to Mr. and Mrs. Warke, a daughter.

all cattle under three years of age.

Cattle vaccination has been proved a success and all the large owners do not nelect it. If it pays to vaccinate a large number it is just as good policy to vaccinate when you have only a few even if you have never lost an animal, as you will sooner or later. The cost is nothing conpared to what your loss would be if it should start among your animals. The loss of one calf will pay for all the vaccine you would use in a lifetime.

Bringing in the Norsemen

Encouragement of Scandinavian Immigration a Good Thing.

Hon. Dr. Roche, as minister of the Interior, is devoting much time and energy to the promotion of immigration, not of indiscriminate immigration, but of immigration of the character best suited to the building up of a population in Canada capable of making the best of Canadian conditions.

The mistake which has been made in the filling up of other new countries, the mistake which provides number rather than quality, is not to be made in Canada under the administration of the present Minister. The great Canadian heritage is not to be thrown away. It is to be developed by men from these older races which have flourished in an environment similar to that which Canada affords.

Attention is now being given to the promotion of immigrants from Scandinavian countries. This is in accord with the new policy. It is part of the plan to put upon the soil in Canada men physically adapted to Canadian requirements. This move is regarded generally throughout Canada as a wise one. Saturday Night of Toronto, an independent newspaper, says of it:—

"The report from Ottawa that the Dominion Government is taking active steps to secure immigrants from Norway, Sweden and Denmark is gratifying to those who wish to see Canada peopled with the proper kind of men. The prosperity of the great State of Minnesota, which is largely populated by Swedes, shows how Norsemen would flourish in our Northern clime. Not only the West, but the province of Ontario, should welcome newcomers from these countries. There are many sections of Ontario which Danish settlers especially would find congenial. The Danes are the finest dairy men in the world, while Ontario is unsurpassed anywhere as a land suitable for this industry. If our populace is to be fed there must be a large increase in the output of agricultural outputs, and therefore an influx of men whose training would assist this increase is devoutly to be wished."

A Comprehensive Exhibit

The Grand Trunk Pacific will participate this year in the United States Land Show, to be held in the Coliseum, Chicago, from November 20th to December 8th. For this purpose the company have secured a large space, covering an area of 1,000 square feet, in which they will install a comprehensive exhibit of the natural resources of the three Prairie Provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as well as an exhibit from British Columbia, the feature of the latter being mineral products and fruit from the territory adjacent to the railway skirting the Skeena River and the exhibits depicting the development of the agricultural lands in Central British Columbia, in which are situated the Nechaco and Bulkley Valleys. The entire exhibit will be embellished with handsome photographs made from direct negatives taken this year by the official photographers of the Grand Trunk Pacific, who covered the route from Winnipeg, Man., to Prince Rupert, B.C., through the Canadian Rockies via the Yellowhead Pass, down the Fraser River to Prince Rupert, B.C., through the plateau and valley lands of Central British Columbia, and down the Skeena to the Pacific. Thousands of interested people will view this splendid collection, and Canada will receive valuable advertising as a result.

GREAT INCREASE IN TRADE

Country Very Prosperous

Despite the calamity howling of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his lieutenants, and their blue-ruin talk and their contentions that the country is going to the bow-wows since the defeat of the Liberals, the trade of the country keeps perversely growing. The trade figures which are about the best possible index of a country's prosperity show that business is very buoyant. The most striking features of the trade returns is the large increase in exports and the decline in imports during the month of September.

The total volume of Canada's trade for September was $95,665,000, compared with $87,606,000 for September, 1912. For the six months, ending September 30, the total Canadian trade was $551,976,000, compared with $506,265,000 for the corresponding six months of 1912, an increase of no less than $45,713,000.

NOW KNOWN ALL MINERS SUCCUMBED

SCENES AT MORGUE TERRIBLE IN PATHOS

Dawson, New Mexico, Oct. 26.—Positive knowledge was had tonight that not one of the 284 miners caught in the explosion of Stag Canon Mine No. 2 last Wednesday remains in the mine alive. Late today the entire workings had been explored by helmet men, and it was made certain that those bodies which have not been found, are lying buried beneath tons of debris.

Two hundred and sixty-one, the original death total, was increased by the death of two helmet men in their heroic efforts to save a possible life.

GREATEST IN HISTORY.

Twenty-three lives were saved after the explosion, which, according to government mine rescue experts, was the greatest in point of violence in the history of the United States, and which ranks third in its appalling loss of life.

Tonight a total of 140 dead had been brought to the surface, and after vain attempts at identification, the pathetic word "unknown" was engraved upon the coffins in which thirteen bodies were placed. It is that word which is adding to the grief of the mine camp.

SCENES ARE PATHETIC.

Scenes in the morgue are becoming intolerable in their pathos. Decomposition has added to the horror of the mutilation, and wives and relatives of those known to have been buried in the mine stand now at the morgue looking in horrified doubt upon a contorted, lacerated face, which may, and yet may not be, that of their loved one. A brief moment only is given for identification, the condition of the bodies being such that they cannot be long exposed.

A look of doubt in the eyes of the one upon whom the last hope of identification rests, a sad slow shake of the head, and "unknown" is entered upon the roster of the dead at the morgue.

And then there are those that are identified as "probably" a certain person. To the family whose member he might have been will live always the sorrowful, wondering thought that he who lies buried as their loved one may have been a man of another name, another nationality.

The mine today remained relatively clear of the "death gas," which heretofore so seriously impeded the rescue work. The difference in the mine was plainly discernible to the Associated Press representatives, who today accompanied the helmet men into the mine recesses.

The tragedy is beyond description. Over wreckage, heaped and strewn throughout every foot of the mine, struggle the men who fearlessly face momentary death to rescue none but dead.

Yesterday the passages were lined with mangled dead after the ninth chamber east of the high was reached. The helmet crews, in pushing forward into unexplored rooms, would come upon other bodies, some stooping and others lying prone. And now and then the bright flash of an electric torch would disclose a hand, a foot or a head protruding from under tons of rock, dirt and lumber. No attempt is made by the helmet men to extricate the bodies, a touch upon the protruding member establishing to a certainty that no spark of life exists.

And so on into the fatal eighteen east, the chamber into which two helmet men were added to the death list, progressed the helmet crews. There death was closest, for, a sudden shifting of a piece of wreckage, the accidental kick of a helmet man against the walls of a room, and tons of rock might be loosened from above to fall upon the rescuers without warning; for the helmet excluded all sound of the approach of death.

For thirty-six hours after the eighteenth chamber was reached, the helmet crews, in relays, struggled to remove the obstruction in nineteenth east, where many bodies were expected to be found. Today the men were successful and room, through which the helmet men could crawl, was made in the obstruction. The heat in the mine is intense and, clad in the helmets, carrying the thirty-eight pound equipment, the discomfort is almost intolerable. Breathing becomes hard, and there is almost the uncontrollable desire to tear the helmet from the head. Fear of this very thing causes each helmet man to watch his fellows closely to prevent the fatal impulse from being obeyed by a mind overweakened from fatigue and the horrors through which the helmet men must pass.

A Million Dollars for Good Roads

COUNTY COUNCIL OF ESSEX, ONTARIO, PRESENTS BY-LAW FOR IMPROVING 150 MILES OF ROADWAY

One of the most important of the many road improvement plans now under way in various parts of Canada, is just launched in Essex County, Ontario. At a meeting of the Council, on Thursday, October 16th, a By-law was drawn up for presentation to the voters next January. This by-law calls for the raising of a million dollars to provide for concrete roadways covering no less than 150 miles, and connecting all the important communities of Essex County. The proposed routes of the concrete roads will completely circle the County, and afford the finest type of highway connection to the farmers for reaching Windsor or any of the smaller towns.

With the assistance of Engineer Huber, of the Ontario Government, the committee appointed at the last session of the council, went over the different roads proposed for paving. Basing his recommendation upon the fact that the route will be used for much heavy traffic, Mr. Huber made his report in favor of using concrete throughout.

An interesting feature of the plan as outlined, is the provision of a continuous route of good roads. There have been instances in other communities where otherwise excellent road development ideas were, in a measure, spoiled by failure to have the good road a continuous good road. The Essex County Council have shown their wisdom and far-sightedness by providing for the complete connecting up of the proposed concrete stretches, so that in the completed project will appear no interruptions of unimproved or bad roads. While not in a straight line, the completed series of roads will be, in effect, one long continuous highway all of concrete, and taking in practically the whole of Essex County.

There would seem to be a peculiarly enterprising spirit in the vicinity of the Detroit River. On one side of the River we have Wayne County, Michigan (the country of which Detroit is the principal centre) with approximately 100 miles of concrete county highways. This magnificent series of highways has been a model for other communities, and has attracted visitors on inspection tours from all over the world. Now comes Essex County, a sister community, on our side of the river, with a plan which bids fair to fully equal that of Wayne County, and which will perhaps eventually eclipse the splendid road system that is the pride of Michigan. The building of 150 miles of concrete highways such as Essex County is to have, means a model county from the viewpoint of intercommunication between towns. Doubtless we will find deputations of municipal officers visiting Essex County to obtain pointers on how best to link together the farm communities with the market places. The eyes of all North America will turn toward Essex County and watch with growing interest the completion of this project.

UNIQUE POW-WOW

Manitoba Indians Pass Resolution to Guard Against Fire.

Probably nowhere else in Canada is there a stronger co-operative spirit in forest fire protection than has been developed by the Chief Fire Ranger of the Dominion Government among the rangers, Indians, trappers and packers of the Northern Manitoba Fire District. The work among the Indians has been especially beneficial, for in the past they were notoriously careless, especially in leaving camp-fires burning. But, largely owing to the energy and initiative of the Chief Ranger, the attitude of the Indians has been changed from one of indifference to one of keen interest, so much so, that that official writes: "The conservation of the forests has become as red-hot a topic out here as real estate in the West."

Recently, when treaty-money was being paid to the Indians at Cross Lake, a special council meeting of seventy-five to eighty Indians was called, at which an animated discussion of forest fire protection took place. The Chief Ranger writes:—"While the meeting was in progress, the Indian Agent and party came, but to the surprise of many the meeting held interest till, by a standing vote, all asserted their willingness to help in the protection of the forests from fire. The chief and councillors wished me to convey to the Director of Forestry at Ottawa this, their resolution."

Whenever possible such councils are attended by the Chief Ranger, and all Indians promising to co-operate with the Dominion rangers are, presented with a metal badge of office. The most intelligent of the Indians are engaged as regular fire-rangers by the Dominion Government and do very conscientious work. Although the patrol is difficult, being done wholly by canoe, and the weather is often inclement, the eighteen fire-rangers in this district average about eighteen miles a day, including Sundays, throughout the summer.

During the whole season, no serious damage was done by fire, although many incipient forest fires were extinguished, a fact that speaks well for the efficiency of the patrol and the value of the co-operative spirit inculcated in the Indians.

CHICAGO BUYING CANADIAN MEATS

Thirty Carloads Received by Swift & Co. in One Day.

THIRTY-SIX CARLOADS OF FISH FROM CANADA WERE ALSO RECEIVED:

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Thirty carloads of fresh dressed meat, aggregating something like 1,500,000 pounds, reached Chicago to-day, consigned to Swift & Co., as the first importation of fresh meat under the new tariff law admitting meat free into the United States. The shipment was from Canada, and the prices ranged from 6½ to 8 cents a pound. This is less than the Chicago packers usually pay for beef on the hoof shipped in from the farms and ranges, and they do not have to go to the expense of killing and dressing.

The shipment was received by the local Customs office at noon today. Each car contains 40,000 to 50,000 pounds. The meats range in class from material for sausage and canning to the best grades.

Thirty-six carloads of fish, also imported, were received at the Customs Department today, consigned to various fish markets in Chicago. Most of it was herring. The tariff on fish was one-half cent a pound under the old law, but it is now admitted free.

DEMAND EASING OFF.

Winnipeg, Oct. 24.—Both the C. P. R. and the Union Stock Yards here are growing more congested than ever.

There were no American buyers on the market today. They left at the beginning of the week. W. Crealock, of Crealock and Dohan, stated his firm had been heavy shippers to St. Paul the last week or so, but that for the present Winnipeg prices were too high to make the American trade worth while.

Confidence is expressed among the dealers that the Canadian side can take care of all the stuff that is offered.

"The shippers expected an extraordinary demand for Canadian cattle at St. Paul," said one of the buyers of a great packing-house today.

"Yes, and we've been fooled," was an immediate reply.

"SAFETY FIRST."

These two words will henceforth commence every train order used in operating trains on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. They will be transmitted over the telegraph wires from the dispatcher, and written on the copies handed to the conductors and engineers of trains along with the rest of train order, of which these important words are to form an integral part. It was not considered sufficient to have them printed on train order franks, and the extra cost of telegraphing these two words with every train message is cheerfully undertaken in order that every dispatcher, conductor and engineer, will constantly have before him the two words that are meant to form the operating motto of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

"The "Safety First" movement is being promoted in another direction, for when next month's pay cheques are sent out by the G.T.P. railway every one will have attached to it a little slip printed in red, as follows: "The 'Safety First' movement now being put into effect on this system, means greater safety for all. Post yourself on the subject, and become a 'Safety First'-man. You will not be censured for taking the safe course."

SUPREME COURT

Poisoning Case

Court resumed Friday morning with Judge Scott on the bench.

William Colvin, a Russian, was charged with the attempted murder of John Parr, or Lily Parr, or both, by poison. He was further charged on other counts with attempting to injure the said persons by the administration of poison. O. M. Biggar and A. H. Russell for the Crown; H. G. Scott and M. Smith for the defence. O. M. Biggar addressed the judge and jury for about twenty minutes, outlining the case in its entirety, which, briefly, is as follows: On Sunday, July 20, John Parr, his wife, two sons, Ed. Seward, and their three-year-old adopted daughter, had breakfast about 7.30, the three single men leaving for Castor and Battle River about eight o'clock for the day, returning home about midnight. The accused, who had the previous week been working on some land of the Parr's about seven miles away, came to the house about 10.40 in the forenoon and said he was going to Castor. Mr. Parr hitched up the horse, and said he and Mrs. Parr were going for a drive and would be back again about one o'clock. They started out, but only went a short distance before changing their mind, and decided to only go to the further end of the farm, as the horse was slow and the weather hot. They returned at 12 o'clock, and when nearing the house saw the accused passing from the wash house to the bunk house, and on driving round the said bunk house they saw accused just leaving in an apparent hurry, putting on his coat as he went along. Mr. Parr spoke to him, but he did not answer. About 2.30 that afternoon Mrs. Parr commenced to prepare dinner. She was mixing some batter for a pudding, and put in some salt, which, upon being tasted, was very bitter. She called her husband's attention to it, and he tasted the salt, pronouncing it very bitter. He thought that there was an ingredient in the salt that looked like strychnine for he went to the bunk house, where he knew some of it was stored, and found that about two-thirds of it was missing, in addition to the cork not being in the bottle. Mrs. Carr telephoned for the doctor, who came and, after examining the salt, said that it showed traces of strychnine, and asked if there was any on the premises. From the conversation he came to the conclusion that the accused had put it in the salt.

Dr. R. G. Revell, Provincial Government Analyst, gave evidence of having received two packages from the Mounted Police at Castor for examination. They were the exhibits on the table in the court. The bottle contained pure strychnine, the large can table salt and strychnine, sugar bowl sugar and strychnine, and the pepper can pepper and strychnine. The salt contained 2 per cent. of strychnine, the pepper 1 per cent., and the sugar three-tenths per cent. of strychnine. If the ingredients had been evenly mixed, they would have proved dangerous, but in their present state any one was likely to receive a fatal dose. He further stated that one one-fourth grain would be a fatal dose.

Lily Parr, being sworn, said she was the wife of John Parr, farmer, and she lived two miles south of Castor. She had known the accused from early in June last, when he came to work for her husband as a farm hand. She had two grown-up sons, John and Herschall, in addition there was an adopted girl, three years old, and a youth, Edward Seward, who had lived with them for about seven years. They also kept a maid, who was away at her own home at the time in Leo, Alta. The boys and accused had been working away all the week on some land about five miles away. Accused usually had his meals with the family, but did not do so on this particular day, he not being there at breakfast time. She got up that morning about seven o'clock, the boys having risen earlier, as they were going away for the day. Having prepared the breakfast, she found there was no salt in the can, her son Herschau having used it the day before and not replaced it. She took the can and placed what bit there was in the box into it, and then found she had put it in the pepper can by mistake, remarking it would not hurt anyone. During the breakfast the sugar ran out, and she told her son to fill the basin. He proceeded to do it, but was so slow that she went herself and cut open a new sack of sugar that was on the chair in the kitchen. This was partly used up for breakfast. After the boys had gone away, she walked round the garden with her husband, then cleared away the breakfast things. The accused arrived about 10.40, and she and Mr. Parr started away for a drive, telling accused they would be back about 1 o'clock. They changed their mind after starting, went to the other end of the farm, and returned at 12 o'clock, which seemed to surprise the accused, who put on his coat and went away. About 2.30 Mrs. Parr decided to prepare dinner, and started making some batter. She put salt in this, and then thinking the milk did not look sweet, dipped her finger in and tasted it. There was salt on her finger at the time, and the taste in her mouth was very bitter. She then took a teaspoonful of milk which tasted alright, so she took the can of salt to her husband, and asked him to taste it. He did so, and spit it out, saying it was bitter. They then examined it, and after a conversation decided to phone for a doctor, which they did. Upon examination, the doctor asked if there was strychnine about. He was told there was, and it was produced by Mr. Parr. The accused was the only one about the place, and she came to the conclusion that he had done it. She had heard the men say there was strychnine on the farm, but did not know where it was, and had never seen it till that day. Mrs. Parr gave her evidence in a very clear, straight-forward manner, and produced a sketch of the farm house and buildings. She had asked the accused if any one had been there during her absence, and he said no. From the position of the rooms he must have seen anyone that called. The accused had gone away. After that he came back again when the doctor was there, about 3 o'clock. She had said something to him as to why he did it, but got no answer, and she told him it was a very serious offence. H. W. Scott cross-examined the witness at very great length, but did not shake her evidence at all. He asked if she thought the man really tried to murder her, and she said she believed he did, but could give no opinion as to his motive. She destroyed all the sugar, salt, ham and other eatables left in the house after the doctor had taken away the salt.

John Parr said he was a farmer, living south of Castor on 23-27-14, West of 4th, the S.E. quarter. The accused came to work for him on June 3rd last, and stayed with him until the 20th of July, the day of the attempted poisoning. His evidence in the main was the same as that given by his wife. He further stated though that when he tasted the salt, and saw a flaky substance in it, his thoughts immediately flew to the strychnine, and he went straight away to the bunk house to see if it was there. He found the bottle, but the cork was out of it, and about two-thirds of the contents missing. He had always kept the strychnine on a ledge about six feet from the ground, and it had been spoken about and examined in the presence of his son Herschall, Ed. Seward and the accused two weeks before and then replaced on the ledge. He had told the accused that the boys were away that day. He always conversed with the accused in English and found no difficulty in being understood, and the accused spoke the language very well. He turned the salt over to Dr. McPherson, who took it away with him. He had found strychnine in the sugar after the doctor had gone away, also in the pepper on Monday, and took it to Constable Curry. Cross-examined, he had not filled the salt can himself, had found the accused alright, nothing against him; could not understand his motive for doing it, but was convinced the man tried to murder himself and wife.

J. R. Parr, junior, said he worked for his father. On the day before the trouble he had used the salt out of the can to make a solution to use for a sore on one of the horses, and had promised to fill the can again, but had forgot all about it. He had risen early on the Sunday and after breakfast started for Battle River on his bicycle, ahead of his brother and Seward, who followed. He remembered his mother's mistake in putting a small quantity of salt in the pepper can, and saying it would not hurt anyone. He returned home about 11 o'clock at night. He had conversed with the accused numerous times, and said he spoke English fairly well. He knew nothing about him apart from the time he worked there. He was not a very talkative man except on occasions. He knew there was strychnine on the farm, but did not know where it was kept. He found his people excited when he got home at night.

Herschall R. Parr said he lived with and worked for his father. He remembered the 20th of July alright. His mother asked him at breakfast time to fill the sugar bowl. He went to do it, but was taking too long a time about it, and his mother came and cut open the sugar sack herself. He had started off in the buggy about 8 o'clock for the Battle River in the company of Seward, and did not get home till midnight. He did not fill the salt can. He knew there was strychnine on the premises, and where it was kept, and he was the only one that had ever used it as far as he knew. He had handled it two weeks before in the presence of his father, Seward and the accused, and had a conversation about it. He had purchased it at Castor 12 months previous, and it was for gopher poisoning, but had been in the habit of using other poison. The bottle had been placed back on the ledge out of sight. The accused and he had conversed, and always in English, the accused saying on one occasion that he was a Socialist and if he ever returned to Russia he would be hanged for mixing with Socialists.

Ed. Seward said he had lived with the Parrs about 7 years. He was more friend than servant. He corroborated the previous witnesses as to how the day had been spent and to the running short of salt and sugar at the breakfast table. Cross-examined, he said it was possible for any of the others to have been in the kitchen while he was hitching up the team; did not know what they were doing. He thought accused spoke better English than the average foreigner and could easily understand what was said to him.

Dr. John James McPherson said he was a registered medical practitioner at Castor. He went to the Parr's house after receiving a telephone call, and from what he was told he tasted some salt that was in a can given him by Mr. Parr. It had a very bitter taste, and he came to the conclusion it was sprinkled with strychnine, and he asked if there was any around. On being told there was, he asked for it, and it was produced by Mr. Parr. He tasted the salt in the sack, but that was alright, as was the sugar in the sack. The accused returned to the house, while he (the doctor), was there, and he asked him if he had put the strychnine in the salt, and why he had done it. He said no, and the doctor then said he had better own up, for he would have to do so to the police. Cross-examined, the doctor said he had taken the can of salt with him in the buggy and put it in his office. Asked why he thought the accused had done it, he said that he came to that conclusion after hearing the particulars at the house, accused being the only one there during the absence of the Parrs. He advised the Parrs not to risk eating anything left in the house, and probably told them to destroy it, but was not sure that he did. He conversed with the accused in English and found no difficulty in being understood. He knew nothing about him.

Constable Curry said he was stationed at Castor. He was sent for to the Parr's house on July 20. He took possession of the bottle of strychnine, and arrested the accused after first warning him, as he considered it his duty after hearing what had happened. He also received the can of salt from Dr. McPherson that same night, and pepper can and sugar bowl from Mr. Parr next day, which he had sent to Dr. Revell, Government Analyst at Edmonton, one package by mail and the other by express. He had known the Parrs about two years; had not known the accused previous to his arrest. He thought the accused understood English very well and could speak it fairly well also. The exhibits had been in his personal possession until sent to the analyst.

This ended the evidence for the prosecution.

The prisoner had no lawyer to defend him, and the Judge asked H. G. Scott to take the case, and he consented to do so.

Mr. Scott, solicitor for the defence, said he had no witnesses to call, and he did not propose to put the accused in the box for the reason that he was likely to get mixed up with the language and do himself no good. He however addressed the jury, going over the evidence very carefully, showing the entire absence of motive, and the lack of other than circumstantial evidence produced by the Crown. He showed how it was possible for the strychnine to have been placed there by any one else, even by one of the members of the family. He pointed to the facts that all the accused's actions were normal that day, and that the evidence of the Parrs had evidently been very well prepared among themselves. He made a very earnest appeal for the benefit of the doubt to be given the accused. This was probably Mr. Scott's first appearance as a pleader, and he made a remarkably clever address.

Crown Prosecutor Russell then addressed the jury. He pointed out that it was not necessary for the Crown to show motive. It was necessary for them to show that an attempt had been made by someone to poison Mr. or Mrs. Parr, or both. They had proved that alright. It was also necessary for them to place the blame on the guilty person. He thought that they had brought enough evidence to prove that the accused was the man who did place the strychnine in the food.

The jury did not have to consider the more serious attempt to murder alone, there was the minor charge of attempting to endanger life by administering poison. He thought the jury could have no doubt as to the man's guilt, and was satisfied to leave the matter in their hands.

His Lordship Justice Scott in summing up reviewed the whole of the evidence, and instructed the jury on the several points and charges. He said that in the event of their being satisfied that the accused was guilty of placing the strychnine in the articles named, it would not be necessary for them to find a motive for him doing so. They had heard all the evidence and could decide for themselves.

The jury retired, and were absent one hour and twenty minutes. On returning they were asked if they had agreed on their verdict. Foreman, C. J. Rutter replied that they had, and found the accused guilty on charges 3 and 4, an attempt to endanger the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Parr by poisoning, the two charges to count as one.

Jude Scott sentenced the accused to five years in the penitentiary.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1913

PROVINCIAL EXTRAVAGANCE.

The Advocate, under the heading of "Decreasing Municipal Revenue," takes the opportunity to defend the local government for its iniquitous taxation schemes imposed on an already burdened people, claiming it is all due to the province not having its resources.

The Advocate and its editor, from the time the province was formed in 1905 to the time the Liberal government at Ottawa went out of power two years ago, claimed the province was not entitled to its lands, that the people were not capable of managing their own affairs; that the emigration policy was managed from Ottawa, and therefore they must control our lands, and every act of the Laurier Liberal government was backed up, by not onl the Advocate, but every Liberal in the province, as well as the Alberta local government.

How, then, can The Advocate, which wishes to be fair and impartial above all things, now say the Dominion is "squeezing the province" and playing the "party game," when it favored that very thing itself only a few short months ago.

Then, again, what is it that causes The Advocate and its friends to cry out for more money to run the province? Is it not the outrageous expenditure for such things as members' salaries, of increasing Mr. Sifton's salry to $10,000 aad the other Cabinet Ministers by $1,500 each; of the government's lamentable A. & G. W. fiasco, wherein the province had to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars for interest, which came out of the people's pocket; of numerous demonstration farms, kept up at great expense, to help out cabinet ministers in their constituency, when one good agricultural college would do far more to educate the young farmers of our province, who have now to go to Manitoba and other provinces if they want advanced education in agriculture; of millions of dollars expended in magnificent parliament buildings at Edmonton before the country could afford it, to the neglect of roads and bridges, which must come out of the pockets of the people.

It is all well enough to talk of the Dominion government squeezing the people, but it is the Edmonton aggregation that are responsible for the squeezing process, as the people are being bled to death to maintain them in big salaries, while sources of revenue formerly going towards helping out municipalities is now gobbled up to help out provincial extravagance.

THE SALARY GRAB.

In connection with the salary grab by Premier Sifton and his cabinet, when the Ministers increased their salaries by $1,500 each and Premier Sifton's salary was increased to $10,000, the Calgary News-Telegram says:

"When Mr. Michener refused to accept an increase of salary as leader of the minority in the house and province, he made the shrewdest move ever made by any politician in Alberta, even if such refusal was not prompted by something higher than mere politics, and it will make him thousands of friends in this province. It is not necessary to go out and tell any business man that this is not the year for salary increases, no matter how deserving the minister or official may be, and particularly at the Alberta capital, where the financial situation is not now and never has been any too rosy. Every sound business man and financier is curtailing instead of increasing salaries, and this principle is needed just as much at Edmonton as in any other quarter."

Mr. Youmans says the above is alright and nine-tenths of it is true. But if we cut out the sentence "and particularly at the Alberta capital, where the financial situation is not now and never has been any too rosy," the whole article is O.K. Mr. Youmans, with thousands of other old timers, denounce the salary grab at Edmonton at this time, and commend leader Michener for refusing an increase.

MUNICIPALITIES LOSE LICENSE FEES.

Very few papers, Liberal or Conservative, of the province can uphold the action of the Provincial Government in seizing all the revenue from liquor licenses in the province while the municipalities are compelled to pay for police protection and other things for these same hotels. The Edmonton Bulletin, the leading Liberal daily of the north, puts the question so clearly and concisely that any reasonable person can understand it. So far as we can find out, Red Deer will be deprived of about $1,060 taxes by the Government's action. The Bulletin says:

"Hitherto in Alberta the councils of cities, towns and villages have been empowered to charge license fees in respect of hotels and wholesale liquor stores equal to the fees collected by the Provincial Government.

At the recent session of the Legislature the license law was changed. The fees payable to the province doubled, and the power to also impose fees was taken away from the municipal authorities.

Under the former arrangement the province charged $400 for each hotel or wholesale license in a city of more than ten thousand people, and $200 for licenses elsewhere. In Edmonton—as in probably most other cities and towns—the power to levy a municipal fee was exercised, and the city collected $400 from each holder of a hotel or wholesale license.

Under the new arrangement the province will get $800 for each city license and $400 for each license elsewhere, the municipality getting nothing. In the case of Edmonton, as of each other city which levied a maximum fee, the change means a loss of $400 per year on every hotel and wholesale liquor license in the city.

There are now in Edmonton thirty-four licensed hotels and eleven licensed wholesale liquor stores. The change in the law, therefore, deprives the city of $18,000 revenue which it would have received during the next year from the hotels and stores now in operation, together with the fees which would have been collected from new enterprises of the kind. The other cities, towns and villages are, of course, similarly affected, in proportion to the number of licenses in each.

The obvious purpose of the amendment was to secure a larger revenue for the province without increasing the assessment on the license-holders. But in doing so a very real and substantial injustice is done the cities, towns and villages. While the enforcement of the liquor laws is the business of the province, the existence of the licensed houses throws a burden of expense upon the tax-payer of the municipality, for the enforcement of the license law in the interests of good city government.

It was admitted fair and right under the previous system that the city or town should be allowed to collect, in consideration of this expense, a fee as large as that demanded by the province. The change in the law simply cuts the municipality out of this income altogether, appropriates it for provincial purposes and leaves the local tax-payer to make up the loss of revenue to the municipal treasury.

Hon. George Perley, after a long summer in Ottawa, during which he took the work of a number of ministers whose duty took them elsewhere, has gone with his family for a two months' visit to France and Italy. His visit is purely personal; it has no political significance. The statement that he is going on a secret mission to the British Government is a falsehood; the criticism based upon it is malicious.

The Borden government keeps its promises. The Borden government promised a new grain route via Hudson Bay and is providing it. The Hudson Bay Railway (the building of which was persistently and deliberately delayed by the Laurier government) is under contract. Men and materials have been sent by water to work on the Port Nelson terminals. Announcement is now made that work is to begin at once on the construction of a large grain elevator at Port Nelson. The calling for tenders for plans for a government-owned elevator at Port Nelson marks another step forward by Mr. Borden towards his pledge of goverement ownership of grain elevators, and also means that the present government is in real earnest about the Hudson Bay project.

WHAT OFFICIAL FIGURES SHOW

The official figures furnished by Hon. J. D. Reid show that the imports for the corresponding month of 1912 were $38,548,000 of dutiable goods, and $19,307,000 of free goods. Exports for September were $37,048,000 of domestic goods and $4,071,000 of foreign goods, as against $25,814,000 domestic and $3,153,000 foreign for September, 1912! The total exports for the six months ending September 30th last, were: Domestic goods $188,405,000 and foreign goods $22,842,000, as against $162,427,000 domestic and $15,972,000 foreign, for the six months ending September 30th, 1912, an increase of $25,978,000 in exports of Canadian products for the half year.

The exports of agricultural produce show a big increase, being $11,829,000 for September, 1913, compared with $5,575,000 for September, 1912. There are big increases in exports all along the line. Exports of minerals for September last were $6,402,000, and for the previous September $5,278,000. Exports of manufactures amounted to $5,041,000 for September, 1913, as against $3,587,000 for September, 1912.

Alberta Violations of The Seed Control Act

The following firms in Alberta have recently been convicted of breaches of the Dominion Seed Control Act:—

Henry Wilson, Edmonton; J. R. Hamilton & Son, Edmonton; J. B. Griffith, Stettler; J. Gilliland & Bro., Stettler; R. A. Webster, Cochrane.

All the above convictions were for selling grain containing noxious weed seeds without indicating the presence of the same, as required by Section 6 of the Seed Control Act. In addition J. Gilliland & Bro., of Stettler, were convicted of selling timothy seed containing more weed seeds than allowed under the Act.

It is the intention of the Dominion Department of Agriculture to strictly enforce the provisions of the Seed Control Act throughout the West, and all persons handling seed should see to it that such seed is sold in accordance with the Act.

A well equipped seed laboratory is at the service of all who desire to have seed tested. Copies of the Act and information as to the name may be obtained from the Dominion Seed Branch, Calgary.

How About Your Housework?

Noted doctors have said that housework is the best form of physical exercise for women—for it not only DEVELOPS but BEAUTIFIES.

The healthy woman ENJOYS her housework—she takes pleasure in keeping things spick and span—and it costs her practically no effort to do so—because she is HEALTHY.

Are you healthy? Do you find your housework pleasant and invigorating? Or do you dread it because you don't feel "just right"? That "don't feel just right" sensation may NOT be worth seeing a doctor about—but it is a pretty certain indication that you are suffering from Indigestion, Constipation, Biliousness or Dyspepsia.

Next time you don't feel "just right" just try 15 drops of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup. You'll get relief—quickly.

England has TESTED and PROVEN, for over 40 years, its worth. There it is recognized as a standard remedy. It is almost purely herbal—Nature's own remedy for disordered stomach.

Price $1.00. Trial size 50c.

You can get Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup at

Pollard Juvenile Opera Company

One of the really novel bookings of the season at the Empress Theatre will be the appearance of the Pollard Juvenile Opera Company, which is now upon its fifth world tour, coming all the way from Australia, where the Pollard system has its origin. Many companies of child performers have endeavored to imitate the Pollards of recent years, but it remains for the originals to furnish the greatest amount of pleasure to theatregoers on this continent.

The Pollard Juvenile Company, which will visit this city, is composed of some twenty-two of the cleverest of the different companies of the past six years, and as the tour is to comprise visits to every principal city on the globe, the management has used particular care in the selection of the personnel. In Sydney, in Honolulu, and on the Pacific Coast the records formerly held by the Pollard companies have been eclipsed, and the public everywhere proclaim the present organization the finest, artistically and otherwise, that has been brought to this continent. Coming November 7.

Municipal Elections Warming Up in Edmonton

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 31.—Numerous new elements, none of which, however, are political, will enter into the campaign of candidates for the mayoralty and five seats in the council at the civic election early in December. The Edmonton Board of Trade is preparing a petition to the city council for a plebiscite to be taken at the same time on these questions:

"Are you in favor of city government by an elective council and separate appointive commissions for each administrative branch of the city and a commission for each of the city's municipal-owned public utilities?

"Are you in favor of city government by elective commissioners, including the initiative, referendum and recall?

"Are you in favor of the present form of city government, by an elective mayor and council and appointive commissioners?"

H. Milton Martin, ex-president of the Edmonton Board of Trade, who originated the plan of a plebiscite on the foregoing questions, said in discussing the matter at a meeting of the organization, that, "like the majority of our citizens, I have not been satisfied with the administration of civic affairs. None of us can say where the blame lies, but in a general way the results are anything except satisfactory. We are not receiving full value for the moneys expended."

Henry J. Roche, secretary of the Civic Government League, who outlined the elective commission plan of government, declared that while it is not a panacea for all municipal ills, it would at least ensure a business administration. He added that the league has no candidates to foist upon the electors. "Our primary purpose," he said, "is to tell the people about the commission plan."

Mayor William Short, K.C., author of the Edmonton charter, under which the city tax and municipal ownership of public utilities, and candidate for re-election, energetically opposed the plan of government by an elective commission, declaring it would not meet the practical requirements of this municipality.

"We have $14,000,000 invited in our public utilities," he said, "and the investment is a benefit for the people. Our chief trouble, now happily ended by the provincial legislature amending our charter, was that the council which engaged them could not discharge our commissioners without a two-third vote of the ten members. Moreover, we are now settling bill contracted by former administrations. The commission plan is a pretty theory—it may work out in American cities—but it does not fit our scheme of things.

"Our charter is inadequate to requirements, but we must have men to carry out its provisions. If the electors of Edmonton will give me the right kind of council and commissioners, I'll save them millions of dollars every year. I cannot do it alone, nor can any other man. A good plan is good only with good men."

The Civic Government League, composed of prominent business men, is carrying on an active educational campaign, bringing speakers to Edmonton from various American cities working under the new plan. Mayor W. J. Hindley, of Spokane, fired "the opening gun" at a gathering of 2,200 men and women the night of October 24, when he spoke for two hours amid the closest attention.

Rev. C. W. Ruth, a noted evangelist, of Indianapolis, Ind., will conduct a revival of eleven days in the Nazarene Church, beginning Thursday night, November 6th, and running till Sunday, the 16th.

Rev. Ruth is not only a prominent and successful revivalist, but has filled pastorates, and is the author of several deeply spiritual and widely read books. He is a great teacher on the much misunderstood and all important question of Bible holiness, enjoying first rank among the increasing number of preachers who are calling the church to a deeper experience in divine things, emphasizing a life of purity, power and fullness of joy, effected by the baptism with the Holy Spirit.

Following the Red Deer meeting he will conduct services in Boulah Mission, Edmonton, from the 19th to the 30th of November, going from there back to the Eastern States to fill numerous engagements.

The public of Red Deer are cordially invited to hear this man and enjoy a series of warm, inspiring and profitable meetings where salvation will be the only theme. The church is situated at the foot of Ross St., is well heated and comfortable. Old time preaching, old time singing, old time glory. Week days, 8 p.m.; Sundays, 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m.

Livery Barns and Fifteen Horses Are Burned at Castor; Loss $7,500.

Castor, Alta., Nov. 1.—Two livery barns, valued at $5,000.00, were totally destroyed by fire last night, and 15 horses, worth about $2,500, were burned to death. The horses belonged to W. McCaig, who was the proprietor of the Commercial hotel. Four teams of horses were saved. The other livery stable was owned by O. B. Olson, of the Windsor livery.

The fire started about half past seven o'clock in the evening, and it is thought to have originated in the hay loft through some unknown reason. Some of the employees were in the office of the livery, but the fire gained considerable headway before they noticed that the building was ablaze. It was after two o'clock this morning when the fire was extinguished.

The two stables are located in the centre of the town, and for a time it was thought that other buildings would also suffer serious loss. Several small shacks were destroyed; these were in the immediate vicinity of the burning stables.

When the fire was discovered, the employees of the Commercial livery started to save what horses they could, but only managed to get four teams out. Fifteen of the other horses were burned to death.

OUR RIBBON WHITE.

By Mrs. J. K. Barney.

Several years ago, at a conference of the W.C.T.U., I was in charge of the question drawer, and amongst others was this, asked by a gentleman at the rear of the church: "Will Mrs. Barney kindly explain what the white ribbon ought to mean to the women who wear it?" I had been wearing our badge for years, and should have said it is the mark that we belong to the great union of women who are working "For God and Home and Every Land."

But the question, what it ought to mean to us individually, struck me as something more. There went from my heart a quick call for enlightenment, and the Spirit answered. I never had any doubt of that, for I never wanted to change a word of the message which was given to me at that time. I said, Yes, will tell you. (1) It ought to mean purity—purity of thought, word and deed that goes deep, goes into every part of our life; for it is the "pure in heart who shall see God." Surely we wish for that. (2) It ought to mean consecration; not merely to the temperance cause. I never knelt beside a woman and asked her to consecrate herself to temperance. If she were to do that merely, she would be one of the people who make the work odious; she would let her elbows hit others, and in her "zeal without knowledge" really hinder the work. When a woman consecrate herself to Christ, with the purpose to do His will, if she gets close to Him, she will see with Him the great need of temperance work at this time, and she will bring her consecration to bear upon it. (3) It ought to mean helpfulness—helpfulness to all who need our help, high and low, rich and poor. I like to think our white ribbon puts us at the disposal of all; it gives us new light on the "every creature" to whom we are sent. Many of our women have halted by a call like this: "Mrs. White Ribbon, stop a minute." Followers of Him, "who went about doing good."

When I had said these things I stopped, but only for an instant, for there was given another thought: (4) It ought to mean loyalty, first to Christ and the work he has committed to us, then loyalty to each other. I like to think the spirit of the whiteribbon wipes out questions of creeds, color, class distinctions, nationalities, etc., and makes us "one in Christ Jesus." How thoughtful we should be of each other; how careful in our words; how tender in our dealings. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples.

I used to forget my badge sometimes before this rendering was given me; but that day I knelt down, and on my knees tied on a fresh ribbon, with the words, "O Christ, I wear this for Thee; make it a witness to those who see it that I am seeking to carry out Thy commission; may it help others to be true, and lead them to a fresh consecration to Thy service." Amen.

PROTECT THE YOUNG WOMAN.

That dangers stand thick through all the country to carry girls down into the terrible underworld is an awful fact. The woman whose childhood was protected, who had educational advantages, and social standing, whose mother and father and brothers protected her from the least approach of familiarity with evil in any form, knows little of the tempters she meets and the traps laid for the feet of her less fortunate sisters.

If one would know of these things—and we would that every Christian wife and mother did know with what persistent and cold-blooded efforts downfall of unprotected girls is planned—talk with some of the brave women who stand at the head of our public institutions having for their object the aiding of those who have lost their grip, numbers of whom have been more sinned against than sinning.

Into one of our institutions in Toronto there came a young respectable-looking girl, who exclaimed, when she saw the Superintendent, "Will you take me in?" On being told she was welcome to all they could do for her, she replied, "Well, it was either here or the Bay."

What was her story? A young country girl met a man, a commercial traveller, it is supposed. He frequently visited the town, and often accompanied her to Sunday School and prayer meeting. An engagement ensued. One day a little outing "up the line" was taken. He suggested it would be a joke to get quietly married now, and say nothing about it until he was ready to take her from her parent's home. In a weak moment she consented.

The time came when it was necessary to write to the supposed husband that their secret could not be kept much longer. He sent for her to meet him in a Toronto hotel. There he joined her. After some conversation he explained that he must leave her for an hour or so, and in some way getting possession of her purse, he went out.

Who can describe her wretchedness or misery when he failed to return. Is it to be wondered at that this forsaken victim of a false marriage felt it impossible to face the home town again. Doubtless, many who saw her in the institution that gave her shelter looked upon her as an impure girl.—The "Missionary Outlook."

RAISING STANDARD OF ESKIMO LIFE

Children of Far North Seemed Beyond Hope But Gradually Reformed After Years of Work

The first attempt at Christianizing the Eskimos at Herschel Island, where their chief settlements are situated, was undertaken in 1.70 by Rev. W. C. Bompas, who later became Bishop of the diocese of Mackenzie River, says Mr. C. E. Whittaker, who has been working in the Mackenzie River district since 1895. It would be difficult to find a more degraded people than those to whom Mr. Bompas went. He found they were addicted to lying, stealing and stabbing. "They practised heathen dances, songs and conjuring, spells and charms. Their religion was very crude, being vague ideas of a spirit of evil, related to cold and death, amenable to exorcism at times, and a less definite idea of a good spirit, in relation with the sun.'

As regards their dwellings, Mr. Bompas wrote as follows to a friend:

"Go to the nearest well-to-do farmer and spend a night in his pig-sty and this is exactly like life with the Eskimos. The difficulty you would have in crawling or wriggling into the sty through a hole only large enough for a pig was exactly my case with their houses. As to the habits of your companions, the advantage would probably be on the side of the pigs and the safety of the position decidedly so."

Mr. Bompas was reticent regarding the prevailing customs of the tribe, but other observers report a shocking state of immorality, infanticide, polygamy and worse, while an utter disregard of life and property characterized them.

Improved Their Habits

This was the only direct attempt made to Christianize the tribe for twenty years, as Mr. Bompas never returned to them, but a gradual change came over them from observing the habits of the missionaries and Hudson's Bay Company officials at Fort McPherson, as well as the Indians who were now largely Christianized, and the grossest practices died out with the passing of the older generations. During the latter part of this period an immigration from Alaska took place of some members of another tribe, and, while now they no longer flaunted their immoralities before the public, within their own villages they became more degraded than ever.

When the next serious attempt to Christianize these people was made in 1892 by Rev. Isaac O. Stringer, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, he found a difficulty to contend with which had not been met with by his predecessors to any great extent. This was the appalling result which contact with non-Christian "civilization" now began to have on the people. From 1889 onward from ten to twenty-five ships a year cruised in the Arctic, and ten to fifteen frequently passed the winter in the harbor at Herschel Island. The average crew of these ships was about forty men, and neither officers nor men seemed to consider themselves under any restraint in their relations with the Eskimos.

Wallowed in Drink

Mr. Whittaker tells of having seen a sober population within an hour after the arrival of a whaling ship turned into a howling bedlam of drunken men, women and children. In addition to this, the officers and men not only by their example opposed the work of the Mission, but ridiculed and belittled the teaching of the missionaries.

Very slowly the influence of the Mission grew, chiefly through the work of the schools for children and men which were established. Finally in 1906 Mr. Whittaker was forced to leave Herschel Island, and in doing so he left the service books with the headsman of the Island, who with his young kinsmen alone had shown any signs of conversion, and this man promised to hold services every Sunday for those who would come. Likewise many other cases where people have been thrown on their own resources the result was satisfactory in the highest degree, for they maintained the services without a break for six years with only occasional visits from missionaries in that time.

Influence of Missions

When Bishop Stringer in 1909 went to the Village of Kittigazuit, where his earliest labors had been, the change that had come over the natives was astounding. He found them no longer careless but anxious not only to learn but to practice what was taught them. The first baptism among these people took place on this visit and was followed by several others, and in the year 1910 one hundred and thirteen became Christians.

An idea of the marvelous change which had taken place will be gained when it is stated that no case of theft had been heard of for years. Besides this the last murder was committed nine years ago and that murderer lives now without fear of vengeance. Infanticide ceased; polygamy is abandoned, and lying extremely rare. The weekly bath has become an institution, besides daily washing, and in place of their foul igloos, they have well ventilated huts, with three to eight times the air space afforded by the old dwellings, while the doors no longer open into a passage filled with dogs, but give access to the free air. It is interesting to note that Dr. Wilson, assistant surgeon to the R.N.W.M.P., says that he does not consider more than 2 per cent. of the Eskimos are tubercular, an extraordinarily small number considering the weakened condition of the race, owing to their contact with the whalers, and the diseases introduced by the latter.

The Aborigines of Australia

The aborigines of Australia are of a distinct race from that which inhabits the Indian Archipelago, and are black, with some slight variety of shade from brown-black to jet. Their hair is curly, but is not the crisp wool of the negro. Their faces are well developed broad at the base; their lips less protruding than those of the negro. Their bodies are deficient in muscularity and strength, but are capable of great endurance. It is said that they readily adopt European habits. These natives seldom build huts or other fixed dwellings, but use as a shelter a strip of bark or a large bough. The Australian aborigines are said to be rapidly decreasing in number, and it is thought that many years will not elapse before they are extinct.

Mrs. Geo. Lindsay and Miss Ruth were visiting Mrs. Todd at Calgary last week for a few days.

Fred Krause and A. Bone left Monday noon for Okotoks to enquire further into the gas and oil question.

Mrs. A. G. A. Clowes, Victoria Avenue West, will be at home Thursday, this week, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

W. Wilson, Irwin Higgs and the Rutter boys had a splendid time shooting last week in the Sylvan Lake district.

We understand that the Sylvan Lake hotel is again closed, and that C. J. Rutter has issued a distress warrant for rent.

John Potter, of Gadsby, and late of Red Deer, is in the city for a few days, enquiring into the possibilities of bringing in coal.

James Mann, Secretary of the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association, will attend the annual meeting in Calgary on November 14th.

After this date Mrs. and Miss Stent will receive on the second Wednesday of each month during the winter, in place of the fourth Friday, as heretofore.

W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., wife and son, of Brantford, Ont., who were in the city Monday last, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Botterill while here.

Mrs. Douglas Gray will not receive on Wednesday, November 5th, as announced in Friday's Advocate, but will receive on the 3rd Wednesday of each month.

Harry Webb has added to his splendid musical stock a line of graphophones and records. We carry a good line of records for graphophones and pairs of all instruments a specialty.

F. W. Galbraith has purchased the McLean-Patterson place, the south half of section 8-38-26, W. 4th, six miles east of the city, for $5,400. We congratulate Bro. Galbraith on becoming a bloated landowner.

The meeting to form a Scots Society will be held in the Orange Hall tonight at 8 o'clock, instead of the Socialist Hall, as previously arranged. All Scots cordially invited, including the ladies.

Dr. George has added a big feature to his museum this week, being a copy of the New York Herald of April 16th, 1865, with a full account of the assassination of President Lincoln in it. He obtained the paper from Walter Marlow.

Mr. Robertson, a prominent and wealthy landowner of the Old Country, and who has large landed interests in the north country, was in the city with his son last week. They were the guests of Mr. Lowes, of Lowes Bros., general merchants, while in the city.

"Resolved that it would be in the best interests of Red Deer for the municipality to bore for gas," will be the subject debated by some of the members of the Young Men's Club in the Methodist church school room on Friday evening, Nov. 7th. The public are invited to be present, and hear this live subject discussed.

The following open letter, of which we suppress the name only, was found outside the post office one day last week: Dear May,—If you are not going with any fellow, I should like to go with you. Just say if you will allow me to have the pleasure. I am serious and means marriage. Will you please. Yours, etc.—

Referring to our comments on Oct. 22nd about the bad state of the road near the railway crossing, north of town, an explanation has been handed to us that the reason it cannot be attended to is that it is a surveyors' mound, and to touch it would be violating the law. It was also pointed out that the road on the north and east side was 66 feet wide, and there was no need to run into the holes.

Canterbury and Canterbury Cathedral will be the subject of an illustrated lecture by the Rev. W. G. Boyd of Edmonton. The lecture will be given in St. Luke's Parish Hall next Monday evening at 8 p.m. As Mr. Boyd was formerly chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, we have an unusual opportunity of hearing about this historical cathedral from one who is thoroughly conversant with it. Everyone is invited to avail themselves of this opportunity. There will be no charge for admission, but a collection will be made to defray expenses.

Why pay rent when $10 will secure you a home-site in Red Deer West.

All ladies interested in this good work should be present.

Village of North Red Deer

The regular meeting of the Council was held Monday evening, Reeve Kent presiding, and Councillor W. Webb the only other member present. The following accounts were ordered paid: Greene & Payne $12.00, Smith & Gaetz 1.25, Great West Lumber Co. Ltd. 33.68, Day Hardware Co. 1.00, E. Morel 4.75, and the pay roll as follows: John Rich 12.50, Fred Davis 11.25, John Green 3.50, Wm. Rich 8.00, Jas. Dalgleish 20.10. An account for $1,399.76 from Messrs. Baird & McKenzie for sidewalk construction as per their contract was presented. It was resolved that 80 per cent. of the account be paid, and the Reeve and Secretary-Treasurer make an inspection of the work and report at next meeting.

The matter of fire protection was again brought up, and the Secretary was instructed to obtain information as to cost of a small chemical engine and particulars regarding formation of a fire brigade. The Council desires to make some move in the right direction along this line. The Secretary was instructed to have two more Notice Boards made and put up.

Council meeting closed at ten o'clock.

BOARD OF HEALTH MEETING.

At the close of the Council meeting on Monday evening last, the local Board of Health held a meeting, Chairman Kent and Councillor Webb being present. Jas. Dalgleish was instructed to make inquiries as to parties selling milk within the village without proper permit from the Secretary-Treasurer, and the Secretary of the Board of Health was authorized to prosecute all persons violating the by-law.

A sample galvanized iron pail of the style recommended by the Medical Health Officer was before the Board, but as the hour was so late, it was decided to hold a special meeting of the Board of Health on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock to go fully into the matter of a by-law regarding the proposed scheme of regular scavenging under the proposed new system.

The Pollards Coming

The great public interest which has been aroused by the advent of the charming young artists of the Pollard's Juvenile Opera Company, will have an opportunity of being satisfied when the gifted juveniles open their short season at the Empress Theatre, November 7th, with their bright and tuneful musical comedy "The Last Waltz." In every way is the company up to the high standard theatre-goers are accustomed to associate with the name of "The Pollards," and we understand that the scenery, costumes and all other accessories, which have been specially prepared regardless of cost for their fifth world's tour, will be on a scale of beauty and lavishness extremely satisfying to the most exacting and fastidious. In looking over the press notices of their recent tour, one can hardly fail to be struck with the accounts of the great success they have achieved socially as well as behind the footlights.

Sylvan Lake

The funeral of Gordon Filmer Johnson, who died on the 24th last from the effects of injuries sustained at the crushing mill of Messrs. Godden & Simson, took place on Tuesday last, when the unfortunate lad was interred at the Finlanders' Cemetery, about 4 miles west on the Eckville road. A preliminary service was held at the house of the deceased's grandfather, and a cortege of over twenty rigs followed to the cemetery, where discourses in Finn and in English were delivered at the graveside to an assemblage of from eighty to one hundred people. The body was enclosed in a coffin with a movable top, which was removed previous to the interment to give those attending the funeral the opportunity to take a last look at the departed who, fully clothed, lay surrounded with beautiful flowering geraniums.

Winter is setting in somewhat earlier than is usual, and the last of the motor boats lying on the lake are being hauled ashore to be housed until next season. The ice now extends more than half a mile out, and in the beautiful clear sunlit weather we are getting adds another charm to this always charming place.

The news that large quantities of steel are being stored at Red Deer by the C.P.R. revives the somewhat cruelly treated hopes of the inhabitants, who have so long and so anxiously awaited the opening of the branch line to this place. Visions of awakened prosperity, so long lying dormant, bring a cheerful smile to "the man on the street," who was beginning to doubt the existence of even the C.P.R. main line.

Several newcomers have taken up land here, and are building or about to build—the harbingers of better times.

Supreme Court

The first case was that of Alfred Main, charged with the murder of Robert Metcalf near Coronation on the 9th of June last.

This case took up two days of the court, and the prisoner was proven to have committed the deed, but he was also proven to be insane, in which decision the Crown concurred. There was no motive for the deed, and the man bore an excellent character. He was ordered to be confined in the asylum for the insane for life.

The poisoning case, tried Friday, is reported in another column.

Geo. B. Harrison, 18 years old, who was found guilty of stealing a motor car at Innisfail, and resisting arrest by shooting, was brought up for sentence.

The judge said that, taking the circumstances into account, he could do no less than sentence him to two years for the stealing and three years for resisting arrest, the sentences to run concurrently.

Supreme Court sittings were resumed in the Oddfellows' Hall on Monday at two o'clock, Justice Stuart presiding in the place of Justice Scott. The first case taken was that of Chester Griffith, charged with committing rape on Hester Petro of Blackfalds, 14 years of age. The case lasted till four o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the jury retired to consider their verdict. They were away two hours, and found the prisoner guilty of the minor offence of indecent assult, with a strong recommendation to mercy. The Judge said he would have to take time to consider the matter and go over the evidence to find out what there was in it that could lead the juryto bring in that verdict. He would reserve sentence until this (Wednesday) morning.

To All Lovers of Music

The Imperial College of Music is to establish a branch college in Red Deer, and citizens and parents are to be congratulated upon having the advantages of this well known institution in this progressive city. Professor J. Handley Wells, formerly of the Leipsic Conservatiore of Music, Germany, is the director and principal, and has under him a very competent staff of teachers, who will give personal instruction in voice culture, pianoforte, violin, mandoline, guitar, dramatic art and elocution. Mr. T. A. Dixon, the manager, is in the city looking for a suitable location, and the advance representative will soon call upon those interested and explain their terms and methods. Arrangements have been made to hold periodical examinations through the Associated Board of Directors of the Royal Academy and Trinity College of Music of London, England. Pupils will also be prepared for Canadian examinations if desired. "At-Homes" will be given periodically, and pupils will also be prepared for platform concert work. They have a special method for beginners which is most successful, having over 500 cases of graduations to their credit.

To get organized and started quickly, they are offering a special scholarship rate, giving their seventy-five dollar course for thirty-six dollars, consisting of nine months study, including the teaching of theory, harmony and technique. Only a limited number of pupils will be taken on these terms, and it will benefit those who are interested to act quickly. Every possible aid will be given for the rapid advancement of the pupil, and a special department will be arranged for those who wish to take up teaching as a profession. Announcement will shortly appear giving location of studios.

Edmonton Wins Rugby Championship

The Edmonton rugby team won the Alberta championship from Calgary on Saturday last by the score of 10-7, in what is described by the daily papers as the hardest fought game ever seen in Alberta, and at the same time a clean game. The Calgary Tigers have held the championship for four years and are a bunch of good players, but the Edmonton Eskimos are more of an unknown quantity except one good man well known to rugby players all over the Dominion in the person of Percy Hardity, who was a star when the Rev. Robt. Pearson first broke into the game. According to what we saw of the game, it is not always too hard to "come back," for Hardity played a great game, his kicking being well timed and good. There was a great crowd present to see the game, special trains being run from both Calgary and Edmonton, the latter city bringing the greatest number, although it was questionable if they made a greater noise than the Calgary boosters. A large number of Red Deer people also turned out to witness the game, their sympathies being divided between the two teams, apparently the greater part being in sympathy with the Eskimos. Scarcely any of the local people present had ever seen a rugby match played under the Alberta rules, consequently no one was able to follow the game as they should do to get any real enjoyment out of it. Those who knew rugby at all had been used to the British code, which is much more open and scientific, combining speed and combination with strength, the result being a very open game, which would naturally appeal more to the spectators and create more enthusiasm among them. The game as played here is of the close variety, the men appearing to rely more on physical force to break through or a long kick forward. The catching too, was very poor, which brought forth some rude remarks from baseball players. It is probable that the players themselves gather very much more enjoyment from the game than the spectators, but our impression is that if the rules were made so that the game would be played more open it would become more popular. At present it is of too individual a character. While force seemed to be the main factor, it is not to be inferred for one moment that there was any dirty play, because there was not. One man got a rib broken, but that is likely to happen in any game, and purely accidental, too. It was surprising how few people seemed to know the score as the game progressed. All kinds of points were credited to each team, even the daily papers differing on the question. The referee, however, gave us the final count 10-7, so we presume that was right.

Jubilee Singers at the Lyric Theatre

One of the musical treats of the season will be the recital to be given at the Lyric on Thursday, Nov. 6th, by the Williams' Jubilee Singers. It is hardly necessary to say much to Red Deer music lovers by way of introducing this gifted company, other than to merely mention their name, for they have endeared themselves to audiences in all parts of this continent and on both sides of the Atlantic. The company owes its existence to Chas. P. Williams, was organized in the summer of 1904, and has succeeded from the very first. Their personnel comprises G. L. Johnson, first tenor, C. P. Williams, second tenor, J. H. Johnson, baritone, J. S. Crabbe, basso, Mme. Virginia Greene, prima donna; Mme. Annis Hackley, soprano, Mme. Clara K. Williams, contralto, and Mme. Hattie F. Johnson pianist, and together they make up a double quartette, a ladies' quartette and a male quartette. Also each one is a soloist of the highest degree.

To years of constant devotion to work in both Canada and the United States, they have just added a year of travel and study in Europe, being eighteen weeks in London, where they gave 130 performances. While in London, also, the entire company was under the instruction of one of the world's greatest musical teachers, Miss Ira Aldridge, whose early teacher was the famous Jenny Lind. It should be added that, in addition to a very high musical standard, the singers represent the best type of colored personality, well educated and university trained. Their repertoire includes jubilee and plantation songs, cabin and river songs, ballads, rag time, sentimental and comic songs, selections from grand opera, etc., and in negro "harmony" songs they are heard at their best.

HEATERS!

If a Heating Stove will save its cost, isn't it the stove you should buy?

Consumption of fuel is the big item to look at when making purchase of a heater. Some stoves give equal radiation for all the fuel consumed, while many consume quantities, but do not give results.

Any one of our line of heaters will save its cost quickly, and you have always the greatest of satisfaction in using it.

We are glad to show these heaters and explain their make-up.

FARMERS:

We have a fine line of modern, new style lanterns for you to inspect. The dark evenings and mornings are coming on, and a good lantern will be useful.
